and the British army played a drawn soccer game here this afternoon. The score was 1 all.

THEY WERE CHAMPIONS 6-WALTER J. TRAVIS

In this hard driven age of sporting _ctivity it seems scarcely credible that in a game that is played "from the cradle to the grave" and for many years has drawn into active participation the has drawn into active participation the cream of the athletic youth of the nation a man could see a champion at the age of 53. That, however, is the proud distinction of Walter J. Travis, who in 1915—which, according to the records, was just fifty-three years after he had first seen the light of day—annexed the metropolitan amateur championship from a magnificent field playing at Apawamis.

Travers Island Traps.

Travis, it can truthfully be said, was America's first great champion. Since he passed from the scene as a winner of national titles other great players have taken his place. Others will surely follow in their day and generation, but when the hand of time had marked not wars but contribute the reveal and
